Daly City Carries Off High Honors For Convention

Old Glory Post Is Successful In Collecting Wins At State Convention

At the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention held at San Bernardino, June 14 to 19, Old Glory Post of Daly City was the victor in many events.

The Auxiliary drill team came home with the first prize. A beautiful cup was presented to the team at the grand ball held on Wednesday evening. This is now the champion drill team of the V. F. W., Department of California. This is quite an honor and much credit is due the ladies and their drill master, Comrade Collins.

The inevitable convention parade was held Tuesday evening, June 16. A float was entered by Old Glory Post and took first prize. Thanks to Comrades Linser and Albertus, who spent nearly a day helping to put the float in order. The American flag of sweet peas made up the top center piece and the side slanting portions of the entire float was covered with various vegetable products of California. Truly a beautiful contribution from this community.

The outstanding Youth's Activities prize also went to the Daly City branch of the V. F. W. This prize alone is worthy of high praise. It was presented by Dr. Frazer of Redwood City. Dr. Frazer is commander of the San Mateo-Santa Clara Counties Council. Comrades Sendner of Daly City was chairman of boys activities during the past year.

The Historian Cup was also won, or rather won again, by Old Glory. Thanks to our artist, Mrs. Blanche Allen, who did a wonderful job by hand painting the entire book. The book was held in high esteem by the persons who judged that branch of the work.

A dinner was given at San Bernardino by members of our Post to celebrate the good fortune of being victorious in so many respects. Each member of Old Glory attending the convention was present at the dinner and a wonderful time was had by those of this Post who attended the

EARLY MORNING BLAZE CAUSES GREAT DAMAGE

Fire Of Unknown Origin Routs Out Of Bed And Disturbs Slumbers

The slumbers of J. Smollen of Irvington street and and a number of his neighbors were rudily interrupted by fire Monday morning of this week about 5:45 o'clock.

Smollen awoke to find his home a mass of flames. He notified the Police Department. An alarm was rung in from that department, which was speedily answered by the members of the local fire department.

Sergeant Sunderland, in the meantime, awakened neighbors in adjacent residences.

Smollen tried to put out the blaze, but had to flee for his life in his night clothes. The house is a total wreck.

The home of Mrs. Katie Nocton, next door, also caught fire, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

Mrs. Smollen and her children were in La Honda on a vacation at the time of the disaster.

The cause of the fire is unknown. An investigation is still under way.

FIRE GLOWS AT OCEAN BEACH

About twenty-five young people of the Christian Endeavor Society of Grace Presbyterian Church enjoyed a weenie roast at Salada Beach, Friday evening of last week.

Games and singing continued until old Neptune, too, caught the spirit of gayety and appeared on the scene, squelched their campfire in his enthusiasm and drove the picnickers away.

INCUMBENT SUPERVISOR WITT SEEKS RETURN TO COUNTY BOARD

In soliciting the suffrage of San Mateo County voters at the August Primary election in his contest for return to the office of member of the County Board of Supervisors Al J. Witt Jr. says:

During my term as Supervisor of the First Township, San Mateo County, which constitutes a four year period, I have to the best of my ability represented the citizens and tax payers of San Mateo County in all matters pertaining to their best interests and welfare.

My record in the past four years reveals a background of civic accomplishments to which both my friends and myself point with pride.

My term of office having been completed, I now, therefore, come before the voters of San Mateo County this time for re-election.

It is my sincere belief that a public official's best recommendation is his background.

Briefly, then, I shall cite herewith my record of civic endeavor which speaks for itself and which I hope will substantially offer a basis for my return to the public office, which I now hold.

I make no idle promises. I offer no theories. I confine myself to facts.

I offer my record of the past four years as my sole argument for re-election and I sincerely hope that it shall be my privilege to again serve the citizens of San Mateo County for the next four years as Supervisor of the First Township.

I have been directly responsible for the following civic accomplishments to-wit:

1. The establishment of an efficient Public Works program, which has not only been beneficial to San Mateo County, from the standpoint of useful projects, but has reduced the actual cases of persons on the dole to a mere 62 in number.

2. The obtaining of State funds, which have made possible the $400,000 Coast Road Project; the $300,000 Junipero Serra boulevard project; South San Francisco's $199,000 underpass and the realization of Unit Two, of the Coast Road, providing a long sought outlet to a heretofore isolated area of San Mateo County's crop producing Coastside section.

AL WITT JR.

3. Through personal representation in Washington, D. C. I was able to deliver to San Mateo County the Federal Goverment's approval of more than a million dollars in WPA projects and I obtained the approval of the State Highway Department for the expenditure of a million and a half dollars in State funds for vital San Mateo County projects.

4. As Chairman of Supervisorial Hospital Committee, Committee on Roads and Committee on Finance, I

AUSTRALIAN TALKS OF PLANS TO RACE HERE

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Joe Matthews, owner of Winooka, came into the office at Tanforan the other day, and, on noting that entry blanks for the Tanforan Futurity were being sent out by the hundreds to the breeders of the country, asked for a blank. The request did not come altogether as a surprise, as Winooka is now in the breeding paddock and before long may be expected to have some fleet sons and daughters.

"Your race interests me very much," said the Australian sportsman, who is here on a vacation, and I am particularly anxious to know all the conditions of the event. We will have to send some mares to the court of Winooka in our fall season, which corresponds to your spring, in order to have the produce of the same age as the American colts they will encounter, if all goes well, and we ship youngsters over. I firmly intend to have my colors up in the Tanforan Futurity before many years pass by."

As the seasons in Australia are the reverse to those in the United States the foals "down under" come in August, September, October and November, and once in awhile in December, just as we sometimes have foals as late as the month of May. In order to have foals of the same age as the Americans, matings would be timed to have foals come in February, March or April, instead of the latter part of the year. Otherwise the Australian colts would be only one year and a few months old when our colts were two years old, which would not be so good. In that country all thoroughbreds take on a year August first, here on January first.

Tanforan racegoers have a distinct recollection of Winooka, as he defeated C. A. Hartwell's clever performer Hueu in a match race at my track at San Bruno.

Winooka was a remarkably fast horse and is of the best of blood lines. His sire, the well known Windbag, was a winner of stakes from six furlongs to two miles. Two things stand out in the performances of Australasian gallopers; they run far and they handle weight. Windbag was typical in both those essential respects. Winooka has every promise of being a true Windbag and a successful sire.

MANUEL FRANCIS STATES HIS REASONS IN ASKING RE-ELECTION

Manuel Francis of Half Moon Bay issues statement to voters of San Mateo County in support of his candidacy for re-election to the Board of Supervisors. He sets forth these cogent facts:

In announcing my candidacy for re-election to the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, I solemnly pledge myself to represent the citizens and taxpayers of this county, with the same honesty of purpose, faithfulness to trust, and devotion to sworn duty, as I have during my 16 years of public service as your supervisor.

I was born and reared in Half Moon Bay, my father and mother having settled there in the early sixties. I was educated in the public schools of this county and 16 years ago was appointed to finish an unexpired term of office on the Board of Supervisors and since that time have been elected and re-elected with increased majorities.

Long before I sought public office I became active in civic affairs and played a leading part in the development of the road systems of my native county and can truthfully say, without any fear of contradiction, that I pioneered the long drawn out fight for realization of construction work on the Bayshore, El Camino, Skyline, Ocean Shore and San-Joaquin-to-the-Sea Highways.

I also point with distinct pride to a few civic accomplishments in which it has been my good fortune to take either a most prominent or leading part, as the:

(a) Establishment of the San Mateo County Community Hospital, for which I labored considerably when it was in the embryo stages of development, an institution which has received highest commendation from state and national medical authorities and the praise and acclaim of officials everywhere.

(b) The building of our magnificent and modern Relif Home, which ranks second to none in America today.

(c) The long hard fight for the acquisition of our beautiful natural forest playground of 310 acres of virgin redwoods—Memorial Park.

MANUEL FRANCIS

For many years I have labored unceasingly with officals of San Francisco and San Mateo Counties looking toward the solution of the Rapid Transit problem, so vital to the future well being of both counties, and at present am dedicating every force of my being against the one-man car evil, which is causing so much discomfiture and rendering such unsatisfactory service to Peninsula commuters.

I have consistently voted and fought to keep governmental expenses at a minimum, to end waste and

LITTLE FRIENDS MAKE MERRY

What could be more splendid for a little girl than to have a birthday party with Grandma for one of her guests!

Last week, Wednesday, the seventeenth, was the occasion for just such an event in the life of Beverly Grantham, 289 Seneca, San Francisco, who reached the fifth year milestone on that day. The grandmother is our own Mrs. Sidney P. White of 420 Irvington street.

The table was all dressed in party attire. The color scheme of yellow and green was carried out in the place cards, individual candy baskets and the beautiful birthday cake in the center. The children were thrilled with delight when Beverly opened all the lovely gifts they brought to her and they all enjoyed themselves so much in playing games that when it was time to break up the party it was difficult to say, "It's time for me to go now," and "I've had a lovely time."

The following merrymakers who contributed so much happiness to their little friend were: Richard Brasesco, Jack Palmer, Sabra Burke, Margaret Jerez, Joan Diane Martinee, Barbara Barbagelata, Shirley Blodgett, Beverly's sister, Marjorie Grantham, and these grownups: Mrs R. Brasesco, Mrs. H. Jorgensen, Miss Ruth Smith, Grandma White and Beverly's mother, Mrs. George Grantham.

The Granthams were formerly residents of Daly City. About two years ago Beverly won the Shrley Temple doll, a prize presented to her by a large department store of San Francisco, for the most closely resembling that adorable little girl actress.

"THREE MEN ON A HORSE" AT ALCAZAR

Chester Clute will play the role of Erwin Trowbridge, the character about whom all the laughs and situations are written, in the globe circling race horse comedy hit, "Three Men on a Horse," which Henry Duffy is bringing into his Alcazar Theater for a limited engagement beginning next Sunday matinee.

Mr. Clute has been playing this role in many of the principal cities throughout the country as have all of the rest of the players, including Matt Briggs, Frank Milan, Jean Reno and others, and they come here direct from a record breaking run at the El Capitan Theater, Hollywood.

"Three Men on a Horse" is now in its second year on Broadway and has run up long records not only in many of the larger cities in this country, but is the talk of Berlin, Paris, Vienna, London, Melbourne, Tokio, Shanghai and Johnnesburg, South Africa, which only goes to show that horse racing is understood in any language.

Charlotte Greenwood will conclude her highly successful stay here at the Alcazar, where she has been renewing old acquaintances and greeting many new friends in her newest comedy success, "Leaning on Letty," with the matinee and evening performances on Saturday of this week.

BRIGHTEN UP DARK CORNERS FOR OTHERS

Mrs. Sydney P. White, 420 Irvington street, is convalescing from a painful illness.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society of Grace Presbyterian Church sent her a beautiful bouquet of garden flowers recently with the message, "Hurry and get well."

These lovely gestures brighten up our dark corners and make this old world a worthwhile abiding place. Let us have more and more of these kindly helps to one another.

EXPERIENCED HOUSEWIFE CLUB

(By Maude Larue Ives)

The "Farmer's Wife" often looks back over the years to the days of her childhood on the farm. Every nook and corner of that forty acre area was full of interest and furnished her material for much helpful activity. The period of time before and after the Spanish American War seems to her as yesterday, yet for the farmers in that locality electric lights, radios, telephones and automobiles, if invented, were not in circulation in the rural districts.

In the long winter evenings, the kerosene lamp sent its hospitable rays to many a cold and weary traveler. Hard luck stories were believed in those days. This farm supported eight cows, and it was this little girl's pleasant duty to guide them from the pasture and up the long lane, at milking time. A typical rural scene it was at the close of day—a chubby, freckled sunbonnet girl and her favorite cow, a brown eyed jersey, walking slowly behind the other seven. The dreamer wonders what became of "Brown Eyes" when the farm was sold.

At that time pasteurized milk was unknown.The raw beverage of the evening's harvest "pure and undefiled," waited in the heavy cylindrical milk cans for the morning's supply of milk; then to be driven by wagon to the nearest creamery. So many of the recipes of that day called for cream, and what cream it was—thick and leathery, covering the top of the milk like a thick sheet of ice.

Occasionally a farmer did his own churning, producing butter for which he usually found a ready market. The by-product of churning, buttermilk, could be used in the art of cookery for making such a variety of good things to eat. In fact, buttermilk can be used wherever a recipe lists sour milk. Try buttermilk in the following:

Black Chocolate Cake

One and a half cups brown sugar, pinch of salt, one half cup butter (stir to a cream), two eggs (well beaten), one half cup buttermilk, one half cup ground chocolate in one half cup boiling water, one and a half cups flour, one teaspoon soda one half teaspoon baking powder. Bake in a moderate 350 degree oven, layers about fifteen minutes and large loaf about forty minutes.

This recipe, doubled, makes a nine inch three layer cake and an eight inch loaf cake, two inches thick; or singly a two layer cake and a small loaf that will cut four large pieces.

Artichoke Omelette or Sandwich Filler

From Mrs. Edmund Cavagnaro, 16 Goethe street, telephone Randolph 7583.

Two cups cooked artichokes, two thirds cup grated cheese and two eggs well beaten. Peel artichokes, cut in small pieces, add one small onion, small piece of garlic; then cook in small amount of water until tender. Cool slightly. Then drain off surplus water, if any. Beat up the eggs and add grated cheese and artichokes. Put a little oil in frying pan, add artichoke mixture and cook slowly until brown on one side. Turn out on a plate, put back in pan and brown on the other side. Serve hot or cold. Can be used either as a sandwich filler or as a vegetable dish at a meal.

WORK EASERS

A housewife whose dog sheds his hair on rugs, furniture and clothing heard this helpful suggestion and passed it on to the "Farmer's Wife:"

"Use a slightly dampened cloth to remove cat or dog hair from carpets, upholstery or clothing."

Send your recipes, suggestions or work easers to the Experienced Housewife Club, Daly City Record, and be sure to give your name, address and telephone number. This is all you need do to become a member. Let's exchange our ideas and become acquainted.

Mrs. L. Lemon, 267 Los Olivos avenue sent in some very interesting recipes to this club, thereby making herself a member of the club. Look for her recipes in later issues of the Record.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened." These words from Matthew comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, June 28, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Christian Science." Included among the Scriptual selections will be: "And seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: And he opened his mouth, and taught them saying, Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven. . . . Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled" (Matt. 5: 1-3, 5, 6).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Christian Science may absorb the attention of sage and philosopher, but the Christian alone can fathom it. It is made known most fully to him who understands best the divine Life" (p. 556).

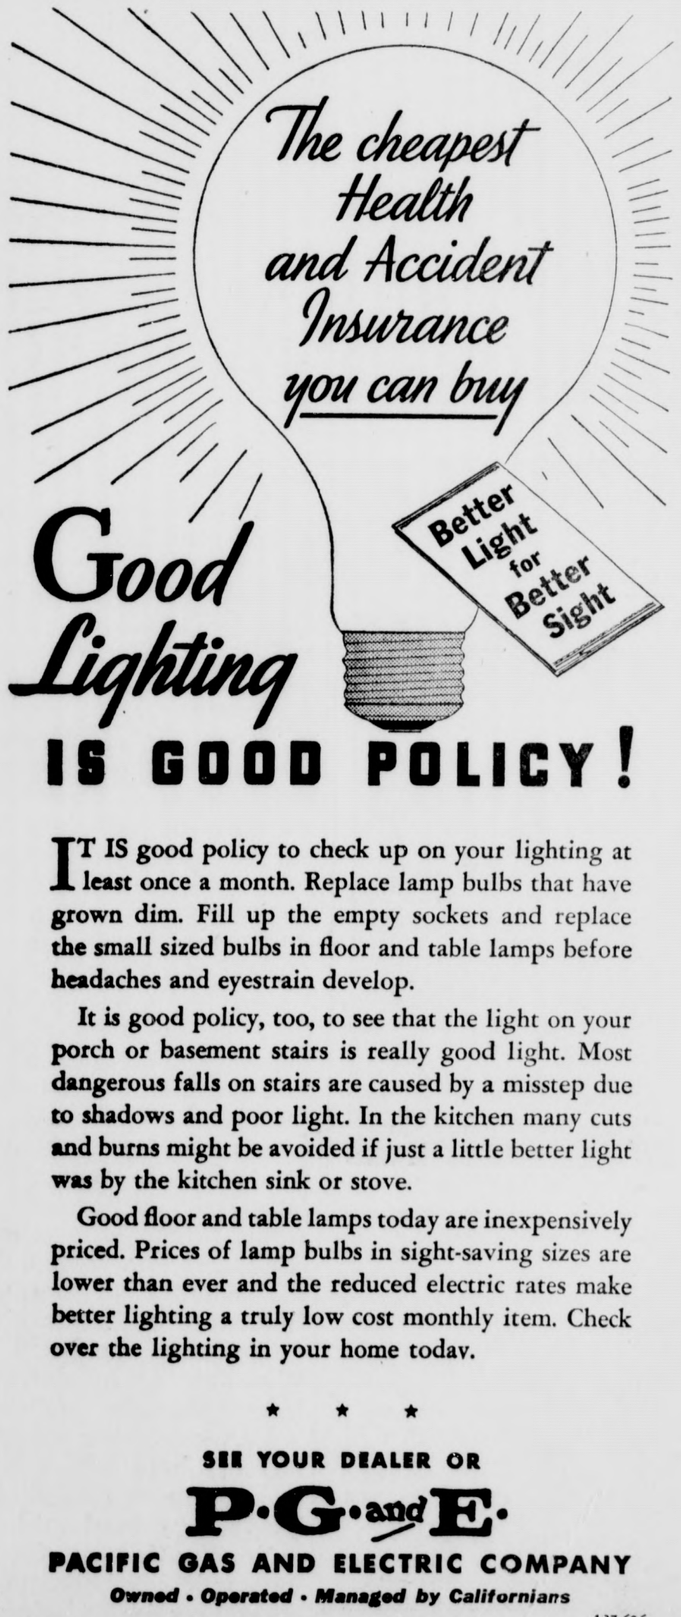
Bible Teacher Speaks In Presbyterian Church

Dr. T. Marshall Morsey, well known Bible teacher of Los Angeles, will be the speaker in Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday, June 28.

Dr. Morsey was a visitor in Daly City last summer and those who heard him then will want to hear him again. His messages are most inspiring and helpful.



IT IS good policy to check up on your lighting at least once a month. Replace lamp bulbs that have grown dim. Fill up the empty sockets and replace the small sized bulbs in floor and table lamps before headaches and eyestrain develop.

It is good policy, too, to see that the light on your porch or basement stairs is really good light. Most dangerous falls on stairs are caused by a misstep due to shadows and poor light. In the kitchen many cuts and burns might be avoided if just a little better light was by the kitchen sink or stove.

Good floor and table lamps today are inexpensively priced. Prices of lamp bulbs in sight-saving sizes are lower than ever and the reduced electric rates make better lighting a truly low cost monthly item. Check over the lighting in your home today.

OF COURSE, children should never drink coffee. And many grown-ups, too, find that the caffein in coffee disagrees with them. If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion or can't sleep soundly . . . try Postum for 30 days. Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. FRANCIS STATES REASONS FOR RE-ELECTION

Issues Strong Statement Seeking Support Of Voters Of San Mateo County.

extravagance, equalize the tax burden, that no citizen should bear more than his fair share, and have fought for equal justice and against every form of special privilege. I have striven for simplified government as well as economical and efficient government.

I will continue to oppose the sinister activities of privately-owned utilities, that cheaper water, telephone and electricity rates be rightfully enjoyed by citizens and residents of our County.

As chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors for six years, it has been my good fortune to be assigned to sit with and vote as a member of our County Planning Commission. The record of achievements of this most outstanding commission is history, and its code of regulations has won National recognition and is used as a model by many States in the Union.

From the very inception of plans formulated in the interests of a county-wide fiesta, I have given of my voice, my energy, and my vote that this outstanding vehicle of advertising, national in scope, with its attendant contributions of encouragement to those engaged in the varied industries displaying, as well as the pleasure and enjoyment afforded citzens of our County and our visitors, should continue, with the united support of all officials and citizens alike, for a bigger and a better San Mateo.

I have consistently voted for a low tax rate, and taxes are low in San Mateo County because unwise expenditures have been avoided in years gone by. I point with pride to the fact that no vote of mine, as your supervisor, has ever increased the burden of taxation, which falls alike on property owners, those who pay rent, those who work for wages, and those who live on incomes. No effort at economy should be spared, for every saving on tax bills helps to raise the standard of living of all the people.

That lasting social and economic betterments be brought about, I have always endeavored to bring all elements of our population together into one united people by recommending the giving all interested in the County's welfare fair representation in appointive positions, where public policies are determined and administered.

I am heartily in favor of the creation of new recreational centers, where needed, with special thought to the welfare of the youth of our County, so easily turned away from good citizenship between the ages of 16 and 25. This means a progressive expansion program for our Recreation Commission.

I believe in and have supported betterment of social conditions, every advance in the standard of living, increased wages, safety and comfort of working conditions, and feel that I have the support of every citizen with a social consciousness.

With the early completion of the two great trans-bay bridges and the opening of the 1939 World's Fair, on San Francisco Bay, it behooves San Mateo County to act so cordially toward all communities during the exposition that its inevitable outcome will be the settling here of thousands of new citizens and home-owners, with the resultant prosperity to follow.

In the above I have submitted a brief resume of some of my activities as your supervisor for 16 years, also a few of my objectives, to whose accomplishment I pledge my faith and loyalty as a Californian and a native of my own home County.

I have filed my candidacy with the County Clerk and trust this brief report of stewardship as your public servant meets with approval, and that I have so merited your confidence and esteem you will again honor me by re-election as your supervisor, at the coming August Primaries.

FIRST GAME OF SECOND HALF IS ROUT FOR TEAM

Daly City Tanforanas And Modesto Stage Wild Eleven Inning Contest

In a slugging match at the Modesto grounds, last Sunday, the Daly City boys were out gamed and outhit by the Modesto Reds in the first game of the second half of the State League pennant race.

Little can be said about the features of the game except that the umpiring was atrocious and the scoring just as weird. The arbiters in the league do not seem to be even good guessers and the official scorers appear to have little understanding of the difference of base hits and errors.

Our home team got off to a good start by scoring two runs in the first canto and adding eight more in the fifth by terrific hitting and a couple of errors by the opposition. However, with the entry of Brown as the Modesto pitcher they seemed to be handcuffed and were unable to score again during the balance of the game.

The Modesto team kept pegging away with only one run in any inning until the eighth, when they amassed six tallies by heavy hitting and several bobbles by the Daly City team. In the ninth they tied the score and pushed over the winning run in the eleventh frame.

The score:

INCUMBENT SUPERVISOR IS SEEKING RE-ELECTION

have worked tirelessly for an economical operation of county departmental units.

5. I successfully carried San Mateo County's rapid transit problem before the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. As a result in the Federal Government's four million dollars grant for the creation of the Plan X terminal funds were included for the Third and Townsend subway, which will serve the peninsula in the future.

6. I have waged a consistant fight against special privileges being awarded large public utilities, fought for cheaper water, telephone and electricity rates on the peninsula and am now engaged in leading the fight against the One-man car which has retarded quick transportation for peninsula commuters.

7. I fought for and secured for San Mateo County, the contribution of $5000 by the Board of Supervisors, supplemented with additional contributions of $4000 toward the staging of the first county-wide Floral Fiesta. This Fiesta has won State and National acclaim, and has been largely instrumental in promoting a better feeling of community good-will and has acted as an encouragement to those engaged in the industries of agriculture and horticulture. For months I labored for and was successful in obtaining an appropriation of several hundred thousands of dollars from the State, with additional moneys from the Federal government for the construction of the Livestock Pavilion, now being erected and giving employment to thousands of men in the northern part of San Mateo County.

I have filed my candidacy with the San Mateo County Clerk and again express the hope that the people of San Mateo County will show their confidence in me in the August primaries by making my re-election possible.

"LOSE WITH LANDON" BRINGS ON GUFFAWS

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

President Roosevelt is in on the ground floor, or au rez-de-chause, as the French put it, and it is up to us to keep him there so he may direct operations to keep the national house in order for a long time to come. Catch phrases of new or old parties meaning little should not be able to sidetrack the tremendously important movement to keep the President in office for four more years to finish the grand work he has begun.

It is not stretching things to assert that when Franklin Roosevelt became the chief executve of the nation there were alternatives before him:

Supinely allowing millions of people to starve, or taking action that necessitated plunging the country into debt.

As history records, the far-seeing pilot at the helm of the ship of state chose the humane course—he plunged the country into debt, plenty of it, we freely admit.

Now, the technique of the main opposition, that of the Republican party, is to insinuate, in every way possible, into the minds of the citizens this supposedly crushing thought:

Save your country by throwing Roosevelt out; you cannot ever hope to stand erect again under the burden of debt he has placed on your shoulders.

Nothing is said about the necessity of spending money to save human lives. In fact, one often wonders if the Republicans care even a little bit about whether the masses of the population live or not. In and out of Congress the opposition has fought every humanitarium suggestion of the President.

What was done by the national administration had to be done. Our eyes, at the present time, should be altogether to the front, and not to either side, or to the back. Two courses of action are imperative: demonstration of the clarity of thought on the part of the administration and intelligent tearing to pieces of the tortuous attitude of the opposition.

Right here let us say James A. Farley and "Charley" Michelson make a good team in assaulting the outposts of the enemy. "Charley" was managing editor of the "Examiner" in the hectic period of the fire and all San Franciscans know of his forthright way of doing things. He is the chief publicity strategist of the Democratic National Committee and is peculiarly apt in thinking up telling phrases that discomfit the opposition.

In a recent statement by the committee, the credit for which may be divided between Farley and Michelson, it is pointed out that the Republicans have set the stage for the great comedy of 1936 by nominating a synthetic candidate on a counterfeit New Deal program. That's a good key-note. The opposition spends nearly all of its energy in lambasting President Roosevelt and at the same time issues statements in regard to a pseudo-reform program.

Farley and Michelson truly say:

"This is the weakest ticket ever nominated in the history of the Republican party and it is doomed to overwhelming defeat. Resigned to the inevitable, the Republicans should adopt 'Lose with Landon' as their campaign slogan.

"Their candidate was, until he was lifted to eminence by the familiar build-up process, perhaps one of the least known of the Governors of the forty-eight states. His nomination is a confession of guilt on the part of a bankrupt Republican party.

"In effect, the American people are asked to perform the dangerous experiment of turning over the reins of government to a man whose record has been concealed, whose views are a mystery and whose career in public life is without a single achievement to indicate that he is equipped for the exacting duties of the White House. No one knows what he wants, what he stands for or what he proposes to do."

The biggest joke of all is the Republican standard-bearer's anxiety for a return to the gold standard.

Less than three years ago Alfred Mossman Landon was urging President Roosevelt to pay off the Fourth Liberty Loan in greenbacks.

HIGH HONORS FOR DALY CITY

Sixteenth Annual Encampment of the Department of California of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Ethel Dorn is the new Department Chaplain for the Auxiliary. Congratulations, Sister Dorn.

Comrade F. R. Linser has the honor of being Department Chaplain for the men.

The Post degree team had real close competition in their branch of the work and were not quite so fortunate. They are good losers, however, and the general feeling was, "better luck next time." Five crack degree teams competed and the winning team had the narrow margin of five points over the losing team. However, a good team won and we feel certain that at the next encampment Old Glory will be better qualified to win this cup also.

Home modernization is carried out in a flash by an interesting exhibit of "home before and after" repairs in the Federal Housing display at the California Pacific International Exposition.

HARRISON CALL IS CANDIDATE FOR STATE ASSEMBLY

Has Program For Good Roads And Industrial Growth In County

Harrison W. Call

Harrison W. Call, South San Francisco attorney, who this week launched his campaign for election to the San Mateo County seat in the State Assembly, predicts an era of rapid development of San Mateo County, provided it meets two of its most difficult problems.

Call, always an advocate of good roads, urged that the county make an effort to solve the rapid transit problem in order to maintain its population growth in competition with the East Bay. He also urged that those areas suitable for industrial development may be given every encouragement in bringing new factories and new payrolls to the county. He predicted an industrial boom as the result of Redwood City's harbor project.

Call, who has been closely connected with San Mateo County civic affairs for many years, is past president of the South San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the South San Francisco Exchange Club, and took a leading role in the fight for the South San Francisco underpass, the Half Moon Bay Road, and the Ocean Shore boulevard. He was chairman of the Mills Field Fair Site Committee, that made an attempt to bring the Bay Bridge Exposition to San Mateo County. He has continuously fought against the dumping of San Francisco garbage in San Mateo County. For seven years he has been practicing law in South San Francisco where he maintains his home. He is married and has one child.

Call served in the Mexican Border Campaign of 1916 and in the World War from beginning to end, enlisting as a private and working his way to the grade of commissioned officer. Call's business experience has taken him into the field of cattle raising with his father and in the merchandising field, as well as in the legal profession. He is a graduate of Stanford University and the Law School, and has already received widespread support in his campaign for the Assembly.

Her voice broke.

"Ridder'll be free in a few weeks," she pled. "Wait, Mr. Gilbert. You don't know how many innocent people you may drag into this."

Barry hesitated.

He now remembered that he had told Pat he loved her. "It didn't get me anywhere," Barry thought. "It never will. I'm not even sure that she heard me, but I'm glad I spoke, all the same."

Aloud, he said, "I'll wait, Pat."

She glanced up at him, gratefully.

"Not until the trial, though," he warned her. "I won't take that chance. I won't let this girl, Peggy, go on suffering until then. But now I believe I know who murdered Kelly. Someone who came into the house while your father was there. Someone so full of the thought of it that she bungled the new lock on the front door."

"You think—" Hambidge began.

"I think that's why it blew open. And I think, too, that revealing your visit—now—would be merely 'tipping our hand.' The person I suspect has already covered her tracks pretty well."

"Then," Pat said, almost incredulously—"Then you're not going to repeat this story?"

"Not even to Winslow. He hasn't much more faith in my 'sleuthing' than you have. We'll leave him to work out Ridder's defense. For the present let's agree on an armistice. Mutual silence. If the time arrives when I feel I must speak, I'll come to you first. Is that fair?"

"Quite."

From the very beginning, Barry had suspected Mrs. Kelly. "She sued for divorce recently, and withdrew the case," Peter Winslow had told him. "Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?" Barry did, and one discovery after another confirmed the idea. "But," as Barry had reminded his city editor, "Mrs. Kelly was in Harlem. She went to a dance."

"Ever hear of faking an alibi?" Harwood had asked, advising a "check up."

That sounded promising until, as the first move in his investigation, Barry dug up The Herald Tribune of "the morning after the body was found." Mrs. Kelly had told him that paper contained a full record of her social activities, and it did. "At the time of the murder, Mrs. Kelly, who sued for divorce recently, and withdrew the case, was awarding prizes at a fancy dress ball of the Crosstown Chowder and Outing club in Harlem Gardens. This was at midnight, and the other judges were . . ."

"Kelly wasn't killed at midnight," Barry realized. "He wasn't killed until two hours after midnight. If Mrs. Kelly got through with her prizes—"

"Well," Barry exulted, climbing into the subway. What next? Say nothing, and saw wood—that's what. One more link in this chain, and I'm going to change a lot of people's minds about me and my 'sleuthing!'"

Monday morning, Barry dropped in on Peter Winslow. He was still carrying the Ridder check for $2,000, and he wanted Peter to take part of it as a retainer, and bank the rest for Peggy.

Peter did accept it, as a matter of course, though he waved aside the offer of a retainer. "I'm in no hurry," he insisted. "Wait 'til I do something. I know you're good for it."

Obviously, he was doing a great deal. "Got the defense all planned," he declared, showing Barry a thick sheaf of memoranda. "Loose-leaf" memoranda it was, in the most literal sense—scrawled on waste paper and the backs of envelopes. Order may be Nature's first law, but it wasn't this lawyer's.

"No, I'm not neat," Peter smiled, intercepting Barry's glance. "Except personally, and that's Julie's achievement. Julie's Mrs. Winslow, of course, and she buys all my clothes. Lays 'em out for me, too—even the boutonniere. I often ask her if she wants me to look like a gigolo. Don't worry about this stuff, though,"—indicating the sheaf of memoranda. "Miss Clark'll have that straight by night."

Miss Clark was his secretary.

"Women keep you in order," he went on smiling; "that's about the only thing I have against 'em."

"There's nothing to this case," he continued. "It'll come to trial in a few weeks now, and be over in a few hours. Want to hear what I'm going to ask that Filipino?"

Listening, Barry felt again that his own activities had been merely foolish. A dozen questions disposed of all the evidence the butler had given so far, and made it apparent that what he actually knew of young Ridder's visit was exactly nothing. "You heard a quarrel? A violent quarrel? And you were alarmed? That's why you came upstairs? Rogers left then? And the lights were still burning in the front room? If you were alarmed, why didn't you knock at the door, to make sure your master was all right? Not so very much alarmed, were you? In fact, you weren't alarmed at all until you saw what had happened." This was the beginning of an inquiry that twisted about, doubled on itself, and was likely to leave any jury on earth too uncertain to convict anyone of a capital offense. "Particularly, anyone with a wife and child," Peter said.

"Peggy was in here Friday," he added. "She looks as though she'd been dragged through a knot-hole. I wanted her to come to us for the week-end, but we're in town most of the time. I'm going to talk to the Hambidges about having her out there."

"That would be great," Barry kindled. "They'd be company for each other. It wouldn't do Pat a bit of harm to learn how the other half lives."

"Right!" Peter exclaimed heartily. "I'll call Pat today."

In spite of himself, as he was leaving, Barry mentioned his Harlem theory.

Peter listened intently.

"Well," he said, "you are a Hawkshaw."

"You'd be surprised if I landed Mrs. Kelly, wouldn't you?"

"No," Peter replied, smiling again, "but I'd be terribly surprised if you didn't begin suspecting someone else ten minutes afterward."

CHAPTER VIII

The more Barry thought of it, the more certain he became that the Judge's story, and the revelations in Harlem, removed the only reason for questioning Harwood's hypothesis. When the divorce action was filed, Kelly had promised not to see Betty Barclay again. That promise had induced the withdrawal of the petition. And then Betty Barclay had phoned, while Kelly was out, and just as Mrs. Kelly was going. In Harwood's own words, Mrs. Kelly "went wild." Failing to get legal counsel, she taxied to Harlem, and there she got "madder and madder." Just after midnight, she drove home, and found Kelly alone—drunk, and with the accumulated wrath engendered by two trying interviews. There were words, and a handy decanter.

The design began being almost too nearly perfect.

He found Peggy doing some mending in her dingy room. She had lost flesh, and seemed to be always staring at nothing. "It's Jacky," she confided in Barry. "I'm worried about him."

The youngster looked pale and ill.

"Look here, Peg; will you have lunch with me tomorrow at the Astor? I want you to meet somebody."

"Miss Hambidge?"

"Yes."

"She'd turn up her nose at me like an elephant reaching for peanuts."

"I don't think so. Anyway, I want you to know each other."

The appointment was made, at last—one o'clock—and Barry called Pat.

"Well, the trail's hot, all right."

"Tell me about it."

"I don't dare over the wire. You know; operators. Come in and lunch with me?"

"When?"

"Tomorrow at one."

Pat was eagerly anxious to hear his news, and there was no other way. But, if Pat's nose remained static when she learned she was to encounter Peggy, her mouth straightened. "Why? What have I in common with this girl?"

"Well," Barry answered, flatly, "you're keeping her husband in prison."

Pat flushed.

"You owe her something for that, don't you think? What're you being so high hat about? This girl's Mrs. John Clarke Ridder, Jr., you know."

"I'm not being high hat. Only, naturally, just now, I don't feel much like meeting strangers. Especially strangers with whom I have no community of interest."

Lunching together, however, it soon became evident that there was a "community of interest." Pat warmed to this painted chorus girl, fearful for her husband exactly as Pat was fearful for her father. Though Peg didn't know it, their fate hung on the same thread. Both heard Barry's account of his discoveries with regard to Mrs. Kelly.

"It seems pretty conclusive," Pat said.

"I never thought of that dame—I mean, woman," Peg added. "Would that get Jack off quick?"

Barry explained his understanding that, if there were definite proof of another person's having committed a crime, anyone in custody was released immediately. "The district attorney moves for a dismissal of the indictment, I believe," he told them.

"Gee!" Peggy said, with the tears in her eyes.

Pat was no fool, and she found herself respecting and liking this "night club hoofer." She was Mrs. Ridder, after all. "Whoever the girl might have been, it was the tears beginning to dissolve the beads that stirred Pat. She had never seen anyone cry that way before—cry with her lips twisted into a smile.

"You've certainly stuck to your husband," Pat observed.

"Why not? When you really love anybody, you don't care what they do, or have done, or what they are. It's what they are to you that counts. You're not thinking what you're going to get, but what you're going to give. That is, the right kind of girl is."

"Gosh, she's trying to help me with Pat," Barry thought.

The upshot was that Pat took Peg and the youngster to Southampton the next morning. "Peter suggested it," she told Barry. "And, of course, you're right—I do owe them something."

It wasn't the debt that did it, Barry realized. It was Jacky. Peg wanted Patricia to see him, and the house was so near. There really wasn't any good excuse for not going. So, for the first time in her life, Pat sniffed fried fish in an entrance hall, and tripped on worn stair carpets, and found herself stifling in a back room without air or sunshine. She'd known people lived like that, of course, but, somehow, she'd never thought much about it. She found herself thinking now. "If I had to spend one night in this place— That's what's the matter with the boy."

It was arranged that Evans was to drive them out, and come back for Barry on Thursday.

When Barry left Pat at her hotel, she said, "You seem to be everybody's friend, Mr. Gilbert. It's a little hard to understand, considering—"

"Considering that I'm an adventurer and an imposter?"

"Yes."

"Yes," Barry repeated, "but that's how you learn what friendship means."

That night, Barry went to the Cocoanut Bar.

"I mustn't overlook anything," he reflected.

There wasn't much to overlook in the Cocoanut Bar. Not in the way of clothing, at all events. The lobby was full of men, more or less surreptitiously glancing at framed photographs of girls whose costumes might almost have been packed in a vanity case. Inside was a square dancing floor with tables about it, like the seats about a prize ring. Above, there was a balcony with more tables, except at one spot, occupied by offices.

There were three shows a night, the amateur Hawkshaw discovered from his menu—at seven, eleven, and one.

It wasn't hard to get acquainted with any of the girls. One had only to look prosperous, and incline his head an inch or two in the direction of a vacant chair. "We're not supposed to do this," Violet Fane informed Barry, "but Luis's got a swell stand-in."

Barry had his expense account and his ingratiating grin, and used both to the limit. It wasn't long before the blonde was telling the story of her life. "I bin with Luis ever since I was a kid," she bragged. "He's a swell guy, You oughta know him. I'll give you a tumble after the next show."

Luis was most affable. A sentimentalist, but a business man, with a keen eye to spenders, and a withering contempt for tight-wads.

A flashy young fellow, Morano was, who wore sporty clothes, and much jewelry. Slim and dapper, his shining ebon hair was slicked back from his forehead. He had a long, thin nose, and straight, thin lips, and a slight but rather curious impediment in his speech. His voice could be very soft at times.

"Tender hearted, Luis is," Miss Fane declared later. "I've seen him cry when somebody sang about mother, or the kid, or sumpin'. That loved-her-and-lost-her stuff specially. He was married onct."

"Didn't it take?"

"Sure, it took. That's why he cries. The Jane died, or sumpin'. Know what Luis did—when he got the coin, I mean? Bought the house they used to live in, and went on livin' there—alone, with a couple of servants."

"Gee!"

"Ain't that romantic? I'll say so! He's still got the servants, too. They all moved to a farm, somewhere in Jersey, a couple'a years ago. Would you believe it—he drives out every morning, after the last show. Nuts about horses, Luis is. Not to bet on. Just likes 'em.

"Learned about horses in Fauquier county," Luis said, returning at that instant. "I lived there 'til I was nineteen, and that's all they know. Go on, Vi; you'll be late."

"I never was late for a show yet," she retorted. "Nor out of one. Not in all the years I've worked for you."

"That's straight," Morano admitted, as she was leaving. "Never been out of a show in her life. She's a swell girl, Vi."

There wasn't much to be got at the Cocoanut Bar; not that Violet and Morano weren't willing to talk. Morano's romance had left him a gentle melancholy—or, perhaps, he was only worried about business. But, if he had anything to conceal, it certainly seemed to have no relation to Kelly. On that subject, everything was open and above board.

"Just a gorilla," Morano said of the Big Boss, the next night, when Barry returned to the Cocoanut Bar.

"Oh, Mike was a' right," Miss Fane protested.

"Sure!" her employer agreed. "He wouldn't do nothing worse than steal pennies from a dead baby. Pal of Vi's though," Luis added, winking at Barry.

"Yeh," Violet declared, dryly; "until that Barclay dame came along."

"He was in here that evening, wasn't he?" Barry asked.

"Yeh. Just a few hours before they croaked him."

"He had a girl pinched, or something?"

"Yeh," Morano repeated. "Nice kid, too. Took her around to the station in them things."

"I don't blame the Jane's husband for getting sore," Morano continued, "though bumping a guy off for that's going a little too far."

"Kelly was soused," Miss Fane said.

"Yeh. Plenty. And he thought the kid was picking his pocket. Nothin' to it."

Officials said that many women in the vicinity of San Francisco suffered eye trouble last Fall because of a drug in a reducing compound, and that the drug since has been outlawed by the legislature.

San Francisco.—Howard Holmes of Yuba City Union High School was declared winner of the California Crusaders' Oratorical contest on "American Citizenship and What It Means to Me." Santa Barbara.—Twelve black king snakes have been conscripted into the United States Forestry Service and asigned to the Santa Barbara lighthouse tract on La Mesa, which the government is developing as a public park. When the forestry men took over the lighthouse property from the Bureau of Navigation after the lighthouse keepers were supplanted by mechanical lighting, the area was found to be infested with gophers. King snakes consider gophers a great delicacy, and are entirely harmless to humans.

Late King George Had an Excellent Set of Rules

Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast that goes away to suffer in silence.

Teach me to win, if I may; if I may not, teach me to be a good loser.

Teach me neither to cry for the moon nor to cry over spilt milk.—King George of England.

Blemishes Made Her Old Looking

Face Clear Again with Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Here is a letter every skin sufferer should read. Its message is vital. "There were blemishes on my face, of external origin, and they made me look old and haggard. They were red, hard and large. They would hurt, and when I scratched them the skin would become irritated, and I would lie awake at night and start digging at my face.

"But after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one tin of Cuticura Ointment my face was cleared again." (Signed) Mrs. L. Whetzlel, 2nd St., Floreffe, Pa., June 15, 1935.

Physicians can understand such letters. The Cuticura formulas have proved their effectiveness for over half a century. Remember, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are also for pimples, rashes, ringworm, burning of eczema and other externally caused skin blemishes. All druggists. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c.—Adv.

LARGE NUMBER OF MORTGAGES ACCEPTED HERE

Federal Housing Administration Assists In Stimulating Repairs

In San Mateo County, from its inception and up to and including March 31, 1936, the Federal Housing Administration accepted 387 mortgages for insurance totaling $2,042,817, it has been announced by the state director for California for the National Emergency Council.

It was also revealed that for the entire state 5991 mortgages were accepted for insurance, totaling $25,997,706.

The purpose of this agency, the law says, is to stimuate repair and modernization of homes to the end that employment may be increased and living conditions improved. Local lending institutions are insured against loss on account of loans made for home improvements, up to 20 per cent of the aggregate amount of the loan. A long term mortgage insurance program is operated, the purpose of which is stated to be to bring about reduction in interest rates, to render more nearly uniform lending and appraisal practices and to check disastrous declines in real estate values in times of depression.
